Three Notable Books

Wee Macgreegor

By J. J. BELL

Mr. Bell has admirably told the humorous and realistic story of a little Scottish boy, Wee Macgreegor, of his father, who slyly pets and spoils him, and of his mother who adores and disciplines him—three unforgetable people who live actually before us in the author's exquisite and sincere work.

In this story of little Macgreegor, and in his relations to his humble but lovable family and friends, there is a suggestion of "A Window in Thrums," which made J. M. Barrie's reputation; and, on the other hand, its humor and fun are as entertaining as "Helen's Babies." It is a unique contribution to modern literature, and comes as a real surprise to the Scotch, English, and American public. The book has taken England by storm in spite of its Scotch dialect.

16mo, ornamented cloth, $1.00

The Bishop

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Stories of a militant, married, bishop, whose work among the rough-and-ready men of Western camps, forts, and villages results in his sharing in many incidents of frontier life—comedy, tragedy, always drama. He is a distinct American product, planted by the Church and grown in Western soil. His life is full of activity of the best kind, and he is a man you have to respect. He has many experiences, some amusing, some thrilling, and these stories afford excellent pictures of life in the roughest parts of the West.

Illustrated by W. T. Smedley, E. M. Ashe, and Others

Ornamented cloth, $1.50

The Triumph of Life

By WILLIAM FARQUHAR PAYSON

Author of "John Vytal"

A story of modern American life. It tells of the struggles of a young writer, Enoch Lloyd, with what seems to be financial success at the price of moral failure. There are two women in the case, the two opposing influences. One is Céleste Moreau, the worldly, mocking daughter of a French hotel-keeper in New York; the other is Marion Lee, daughter of Lloyd's publisher. His struggle between these two influences—the one demoralizing, the other ennobling—is worked out through many intricacies of plot, and only after a series of intense dramatic situations, such as are found in stories of vivid strength, does he emerge triumphant from the final crisis.

Ornamented cloth, $1.50

HARPER & BROTHERS, Franklin Square, New York

ONE of the many attractions to the trade in the new edition of "Children of Destiny," by Molly Elliot Seawell, is the wonderful illustrations by A. B. Wenzell, and there are six in all, similar to the above. The text is Miss Seawell's most brilliant and serious work. A novel of the hot-blooded sons and daughters of the South, full of fire and passion of their romantic region. 12mo, $1.50.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY, PUBLISHERS

Publish To-Day

THE HOUSE ON THE HUDSON

By Frances Powell. $1.50.

A very remarkable first novel, by a new writer who tells a strikingly unconventional story. From the moment Miss Athena Derohan arrives at Highgrove Hall, young, beautiful and unprotected, the chivalrous interest of the reader is awakened, only to be still more potently stimulated by the mysterious developments which follow. The whole romance, blending the characteristics of a detective story with those of a passionate and forceful drama of love, is one of peculiar originality.

A GIRL OF IDEAS

By Annie Flint. $1.50.

This very unusual novel details the business career of a girl whose imagination is her only capital. Publisher after publisher rejects Elinor Day's manuscripts. Her money runs low. Refusing to accept defeat, she opens an office for the selling of ideas to established writers. The scheme meets with instant success. She becomes a distinguised author—by proxy. Many complex situations develop, the solution of the most embarrassing of which constitutes the climax of the book.

THE JULIA MARLOWE EDITION OF THE CAVALIER

By George W. Cable. Illustrated with many photographs of scenes in the stage version of the novel, reproduced in color. $1.50.

This edition of Mr. Cable's celebrated novel is rendered especially interesting and beautiful by the charming photographs picturing Miss Marlowe in the role of Charlotte Oliver, the heroine of both novel and play.

LITERARY LANDMARKS OF OXFORD

By Laurence Hutton. Exquisitely illustrated by Herbert Railton. 12mo, $1.20 net (postage 12 cents).

A worthy companion to the entertaining and most useful books by Mr. Hutton which have made the "Literary Landmarks" title a recognized voucher, like Augustus Hare's "Walks." The rooms of Oxford Colleges are crowded with literary associations which he has so grouped, in sections following the alphabetical order of the colleges, that the Oxford visitor may make his pilgrimage with the utmost convenience.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HENRY T. COATES & CO. will shortly publish "The Tu-Tze's Tower," a story of the uprising against the foreigners in China in 1900, by Miss Louise Betts Edwards, a well-known Philadelphia newspaper woman and contributor to magazines.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO. will bring out directly Seumas MacManus's new book, "A Lad o' the O'Friels," a pastoral and idyllic novel of Irish "cottager" life. They will publish on the 6th of April a new novel by David Graham Phillips, entitled "Golden Fleece," a picture of American high life, the central figure of which is an impecunious British Earl who has come to America in search of a rich wife. The volume will have sixteen illustrations by Harrison Fisher.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce a novel by Alice Duer Miller, entitled "The Modern Obstacle," which is said to be a story of more or less problematical nature, showing that the most formidable obstruction to the course of true love from a socialistic point of view is the lack of money. They will bring out at once the sixth volume of the new edition of Byron's Poetical Works, which will contain the fragment of the XVIIth Canto of "Don Juan" that has never been published. In May they will bring out Thomas Nelson Page's new novel, "Gordon Keith," the first he has written since his "Red Rock" appeared. The scene of the new story includes New York City and Virginia, and the period extends from the close of the war to within ten years ago. The hero is a Southerner and the heroine a New York girl.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have just published a readable and attractive volume entitled "Winter India," by Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore, a book that will appeal to the traveller as well as to those who are interested in India, written by one whose "Jinrikisha Days in Japan," and her works on Java and China are standards on their respective countries; "A Comedy of Conscience," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, who evolves a very clever story out of the experiences of a spinster who unwittingly, as she is robbed of a purse, becomes owner of a valuable diamond ring, and is troubled with the problem of what she should do with it; also, "When Patty Went to College," by Jean Webster, describing the humorous experiences of a college girl with a penchant for getting into scrapes and possessed of unlimited resources in getting out of them.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. publish to-day "The Mannerings," a new story of country life, by Miss Alice Brown, author of "Margaret Warrener," etc., the plot of which involves a double love story which is said to be ingenious; "The Legatee," by Alice Prescott Smith, a story of life in a Wisconsin lumber town, its labor antagonisms, and the catastrophe of a forest fire; "Young People's History of Holland," by Dr. William Elliot Griffis, author of "Brave Little Holland," etc.; "The Enjoyment of Art," by Carleton Noyes, whose purpose is to set forth the nature and the meaning of a work of art; the second and concluding volume of "Correspondence of the Colonial Government of Rhode Island, 1723-1775," edited by Gertrude S. Kimball; also, revised editions of "Charles Eliot, Landscape Architect," and of Professor James M. Hoppin's "Great Epochs in Art History."

The treatment of Mr. Chadwick's "Channing" is similar to his biography of "Theodore Parker," and will engage the attention of readers and students of the anti-slavery conflict, for Channing's relation to this subject abounded in dramatic interest and had an individuality which is carefully brought out. Of more immediate importance is his prophetic attitude with reference to the liberality of the sects and the problems of sociology and philanthropy. The main intention is to exhibit Channing's vital criticism of our present tendencies and his encouragement to our higher aspirations.

The story of the campaign as retold from this standpoint is of appealing interest; but of greater interest is the story of the half-century succeeding, in which Braddock's Road was the only highway into the upper Ohio valley—the most important thoroughfare into the West.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

KEEPING STOCK CLEAN.

THE soft-coal nuisance with which storekeepers have been plagued in regions that had hitherto burned only anthracite coal failed after all to teach booksellers a needed lesson —namely, to guard against soiled goods by carefully wrapping them up. While it is not practicable nor even desirable to wrap up every book kept in stock, it is both practicable and desirable to wrap up the "leaders" and the books that move rapidly. These are ordinarily stacked in pyramids up near the entrance of the store, to make a show. In some cases storekeepers are even paid a bonus by publishers to advertise their stock in this manner. But whatever small pecuniary gain they may enjoy in this way they lose in reputation for keeping clean, fresh stock. Let the publisher supply the book with ever so stout a wrapper, the edges will be exposed to the soot that drifts in through doors and windows, and to the inevitable dust that rises from sweeping and that finds its way up under the cloth, though it be the intention of the sweeper to fit it as snugly as possible over the books. Then, on rainy days, even the most careful customers are likely to brush against the exposed books with their damp clothing, helping to make the books untidy. All this might be avoided if each book were enveloped in a close-fitting wrapper, leaving one or two copies exposed for inspection.

"But," it may be objected, "we are in danger of losing a valuable advertising feature." Not necessarily. The wrapped-up pile may be ornamented with posters advertising the books so protected—by posters, that, if the facts were known, are now in many cases hidden away where they do little good either to the publisher who has been at great expense in getting them up, or to the bookseller whom they are intended to benefit. Besides, as we said at the start, any slight loss that may be incurred by covering up such books will be amply compensated by the satisfaction given to a fastidious customer who may possibly rather do without a book than to have a soiled one. Indeed, one serious objection many bookbuyers have to lending libraries, such as the Booklovers and Tabard Inn, is that, while the copies may not be so worn as those in use in the ordinary free or circulating library, the books are not absolutely fresh. Whenever possible, books should be completely wrapped, whether kept in the store or in the stock room. The handing out of absolutely fresh books may easily become as strong an advertising feature for a bookseller, as the handing out of bright new coins and crisp new bills was made in certain cities during the past holiday season by a number of booksellers and other merchants.

The cost of wrapping is an almost insignificant item, as the paper need not be of a high quality nor heavy in weight, and the labor may be performed by any intelligent boy at odd times during the day.

THE coalition of the firm of Harper & Brothers and R. H. Russell, noted elsewhere in this issue, has been variously construed by the daily press, and several writers have indulged in wild prophecies foreshadowing the extinction of the small publisher, and the final "round-up" of the remaining large publishing houses in a combination similar—as one writer thinks—to the so-called Steel Trust. In these days of combinations such an idea would naturally occur to a writer of "snap" opinions; we doubt, however, whether the publishing of the future will be done on the department-store plan, or on the lines of the pork-packing or steel industries. Natural or manufactured products can be "cornered;" but what enterprising promoter, or band of promoters, could be found enterprising enough, or foolhardy enough, to attempt to bring the products of the mind of a nation together under one publisher's roof for generations to come! There are some, we know, who think that the hope of the future of the publishing business lies in specialization rather than in centralization. This might bring together related branches and strengthen by combination of experience and capital the firms that may be already in existence. But so long as Longfellows, Hawthornes, Bancrofts and other geniuses still remain to be born and discovered, and paper will be made and printing presses built, the small publisher will continue to have his day and the advent of a publishing trust will be at least delayed.

WOOD PULP CASE DECIDED.

THE Board of Classification of the United States General Appraisers, on March 23, decided the famous Canadian wood pulp case, which has been pending before it for some months past. The case has attracted a great deal of attention, not only from manufacturers of both pulp and paper, but from newspaper publishers as well, and the general question at issue has also been discussed widely by forestry experts. Two distinct questions were presented to the Board. One related to pulp imported from Quebec and the other to pulp from Ontario. In each case the pulp is made from wood cut on what are called "crown lands." A tariff provides that licensees shall pay a tax of sixty-five cents per cord for pulp wood cut, but a rebate is allowed of twenty-five cents per cord on "timber manufactured into paper pulp in the Dominion of Canada."

The United States customs authorities levied an additional duty equal to the twenty-five cents rebate allowed. The Board of Classification now overrules the protest relating to the pulp from Quebec, and the action of the collector in that particular is sustained.

Judge Somerville, of Alabama, writes the opinion of the Board. He says: "An export duty is a duty or tax imposed upon merchandise on its exportation from any country, and this is necessarily true in whatever form or disguise this tax may be concealed."

John G. Milburn, of Buffalo, was the counsel for the importers, and Albert H. Washburn for the government.

It is expected that the case will be appealed to the federal courts.

R. H. RUSSELL AND HARPER & BROTHERS COMBINE.

R. H. RUSSELL has formed a combination with Harper & Brothers by which his whole business will be transferred to them. This move has been made by Mr. Russell for the purpose of facilitating and enlarging the conduct of his business; the particular line of books which he has published will be continued under his own imprint as heretofore, with the added facilities of advertising and distributing afforded by the house of Harper & Brothers.

A BOGUS DIRECTORY SWINDLE.

THE New York Herald for March 23 describes a clever swindle by means of which a number of business men in the United States, and, presumably, in other countries, have been fleeced to an amount estimated to be above a million dollars. Briefly, according to the Herald, "the plan, which is known to the police of every city as 'the bogus directory swindle,' consists in obtaining the official signature of a bank, a corporation or a business man to an apparently innocent question and then have it reappear in the hands of a third person as a contract for advertising space in a hitherto unheard of business directory. These directories are always shown, and it is here that the Association of Business Directory Men are interested.

"They allege that the directory shown is only one of their publications, with substituted binding, title-page and one page containing the advertisement. Never one of these leaves the possession of the band, and an attempt to receive it only results in the victim getting deeper in the mire of swindle. So sharply has the scheme been worked that there are records where the same firm has been victimized five times within a year and a half.

"Out of New Britain, Conn., it is asserted, $10,000 was taken in one visit, extending over a period of several months. Portland, Me., contributed $5000, and from Waterbury and Ansonia, Conn., Boston and other Massachusetts cities, and the cities of Ohio and Pennsylvania as much more each was taken.

"By the arrest of Arthur P. Hubbard in Washington, D. C., a month ago, it was learned that he had collected $2500 alone by the plan since January 1. The arrest of one Finnimore, who is known to the police of New York City, in North Attleboro, Mass., disclosed a similar case for him, and other arrests throughout the East only confirmed the magnitude of the operations. These men, it is said, do not fear conviction. Backed by the money of one of the syndicates, they will face their trial without fear.

"According to a member of one of the principal bands who has lately fallen out with his chiefs, the business of directory swindling is in the hands of about four different organizations in this country. All produce the same results, with slightly different methods. The one with which he is familiar is said to be conducted by two brothers and a third man as a partner. He is an expert printer.

"These men have operated under many names—the Webster Press, Sandford & Co., the Chatham Press, Mason, Robbins & Co.; the Central Book Company of Philadelphia, Winslow & Co., of Chicago, and a host of other titles. Their offices for the most part have been in New York—sometimes in Fifth Avenue, sometimes in East and West Fourteenth Street, and of late in lower Broadway, where the landlords are not particular about references. The 'offices' are never more than one room, retained only until, as they express it, 'a firm is closed out.' Their printing offices and book bindery were until recently in East Fourteenth Street. They have been moved lately to Jersey City.

"They have not worked in New York for two years. Inspector McClusky, at that time Captain McClusky, in charge of the Detective Bureau, placed Detective Flahy on their case, with the result that there was an arrest and suspension of operations in the city."

FORTY BIBLES A MINUTE.

THE Caxton Magazine prints the following extraordinary facts concerning the capacity of the Oxford University Press: "The Bible publications of the Oxford University Press have been issued for three hundred years and can be published in 150 languages and dialects. Every year fully 600 tons of paper are used for this purpose alone. Orders for 100,000 Bibles are quite common, and the supply of printed sheets is so great that an order for half a million copies can be readily filled. On an average, from 30 to 40 Bibles are furnished every minute, and this number can readily be doubled. There are no fewer than 110 different editions of the Oxford Bibles in English, varying from the magnificent folio edition for pulpit use to the "brilliant" Bible, the smallest edition of the Scriptures in the world. Of the Revised Version, fourteen editions are published. More than a million copies of the revised New Testament has been ordered before the day of publication in May of 1881, and it is claimed that the workingmen of the establishment refused a bribe of some four thousand pounds to furnish a copy of the book before the day of issue. At the banquet held at the four hundredth celebration of the beginning of the art of printing in England by Caxton, Gladstone took into his hands and exhibited to those present a copy of the Bible which had been printed and bound entirely since midnight of the preceding day. The preparation of the "India paper" used by the Oxford University Press is a business secret of great value. Although frequently imitated it has never been equalled. The largest folio Bible printed in Oxford measures 19 by 12 inches, and no erratum has as yet been found in it. The "Brilliant Text Bible" measures 3¾ by 2⅛ inches and is ¾ of an inch thick, and bound weighs less than three ounces. In the seventeen years since the Press has been under the management of Horace Hart, the number of employees has increased from 278 to 650."

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

REPRINTS OF ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA BARRED IN CANADA.

A. & C. Black, the publishers of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," have secured a perpetual injunction restraining the Imperial Book Company from importing into Canada any copies of the encyclopedia or any part of it printed in any country outside of the British Dominions. The judgment orders the defendants to deliver up any copies so printed now in their possession, to pay the cost of the action, and, if the plaintiffs require it, render an accounting of their profits.

COMMUNICATIONS.

WHAT IS A CHAP BOOK?

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Dear Sir: I have just seen Mr. John Svensk's remarks on my article on this subject. My sole object in writing it was to be of some service—not to display any "pride of accuracy" for that has been "knocked out" of me long ago if ever I had any; nor was it the outcome of the "disease known as writing to the Times." If the point I made therein is of no use to Mr. Svensk I am not without hope that it may be helpful to those who are aiming at accuracy. Charles Welsh.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Conrad James White for three years in the book department of A. M. Rothschild & Co., of Chicago, and for a year buyer for the book department of "The Emporium" of San Francisco, Cal., died, February 9, at Peru, Ind., aged twenty-six.

The Rev. George Lewis Prentiss died March 19 in New York City aged eighty-seven, having been born in Gorham, Me., May 12, 1816. Dr. Prentiss wrote "The Problem of the Veto Power," "Our National Bane," "The Agreement Between Union Seminary and the General Assembly," "Fifty Years of Union Seminary," and "Memoirs of Sargent S. Prentiss and Harvey Skinner, D.D."

The Very Rev. Frederic William Farrar, Dean of Canterbury since 1895, died March 22. Dr. Farrar was born in Bombay, where his father was chaplain, August 7, 1831. After leaving Cambridge he became assistant master at Harrow, and afterwards head master of Marlborough College. In 1876 he became Canon of Westminster, and nineteen years later he became Dean of Canterbury. He was active as a writer and produced upwards of fifty works the best-known among which are his "Life of Christ," "Life of St. Paul," and "Early Days of Christianity," which have had a wide and steady sale. Dr. Farrar came to this country in 1885, remaining from August to December, travelling and lecturing.

Charles Godfrey Leland, died, March 20, in Florence, Italy, where he had resided since 1886. Mr. Leland was born in Philadelphia, August 15, 1824. He was graduated from Princeton in 1846, and afterward studied at Heidelberg, Munich and Paris. He was in Paris in 1848 and took part in the revolutionary uprising in that year. He returned to Philadelphia in 1848 and was admitted to the bar, but gave up the profession to devote himself to literary pursuits. He was at one time editor of the New York Illustrated News and of Vanity Fair, and was connected with the editorial staff of Frank Leslie's publications and of the New York Times. In 1861 he established the Continental Magazine in Boston. Two years later he enlisted in Biddle's Artillery Company, an "emergency regiment," and went to Gettysburg with Smith's Reserves. In 1866 he became editor of the Philadelphia Press, which he left in 1869 to go to London where he lived until 1880. In that year he returned to Philadelphia, to devote himself to the introduction of industrial education in the public schools. When the Civil War broke out, Leland published, through his old friend, Frederick Leypoldt, then a bookseller in Philadelphia, a political satire entitled "The Book of Copperheads," which had an enormous sale. Mr. Leypoldt also published, in sumptuous style, Mr. Leland's "Legends of the Birds." While connected with the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, in 1858, he wrote for Graham's Magazine "Hans Breitmann's Barty," which did not attract much attention until years afterward when he gathered it and its successor together, and 50,000 copies sold in one year. Mr. Leland made an intimate study of the gypsies and the North American Indians on which subjects he became a recognized authority. He was one of the originators of the Folk-Lore Congress at Paris in 1889, and discovered the Shelta (Celtic tinker) language. Among his books are "Meister Karl's Sketch Book," "Pictures of Travel," and other translations from Heinrich Heine; "Sunshine in Thought," "The Music-Lesson of Confucius," "Johnnykin and the Goblins," "Pidgin-English Sing Song," "France, Alsace and Lorraine," "Gypsies," "Egyptian Sketch Book," "Life of Lincoln," "Gypsy Sorcery," "Legends of Florence," "Songs of the Sea and Lays of the Land," "Etruscan Roman Remains," "The Poetry and Mystery of Dreams," "Gaudeamus," "English Gypsy Songs," in which he was aided by Professor E. H. Palmer and Miss Janet Tuckey; "The Algonquin Legends of New England," "Kuloscap, the Master," and a series of "Art Work Manuals."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE late Dr. Birbeck Hill had happily completed before his untimely death his edition of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets."

RUDYARD KIPLING has written two stories—"The Bonds of Discipline" and "Their Lawful Occasions"—for Collier's Weekly which has also made arrangements for the exclusive right to publish Mr. Kipling's poems on political and social topics.

ADOLF WILBRANDT, a German novelist of some reputation has discovered a new light in German literature in a German artisan named Hugo Bertsch, who lives in Williamsburg in Greater New York. The Cottas of Stuttgart, on Mr. Wilbrandt's recommendation, will publish a novel by Bertsch entitled "Brother and Sister" ("Die Geschwister,") which describes the career and misfortunes of an American workingman who has been disabled by an accident and who struggles courageously against poverty. The work, according to Wilbrandt, in its portrayal of character, shows some of the strength of the Russian novelist, Gorki.

MISS MARTHA W. AUSTIN, the author of "Veronica," is a Southern woman, the daughter of the Commander of Austin's Battalion of Sharpshooters in the Confederate Army. Her grandfather, Dr. Austin of New Orleans, was one of the most noted and beloved physicians in the South. Although Miss Austin has lived much of her life in New Orleans and at a country place on the Gulf Coast, she has travelled considerably. She has studied at Sophie Newcomb College (Tulane University, New Orleans) and at Radcliffe, and all her life her library has been her playground. Her writing before this novel, "Veronica," took the form of charming descriptions of nature and essays, and of stray bits of dainty fanciful verse.

THE truth concerning the authorship of "An Englishwoman's Love Letters," according to a report from London, is about to be revealed. The preface to the new English edition, shortly to be brought out, will be signed with the name of the alleged real author, Ester Marion Foley, though, it is explained, the preface discloses very little more about the tragedy which the last letters obscure. "A trace of the tragedy, however," according to our informant, "may perhaps be found in the 'Englishwoman's' story of her kinswoman, Doris Foley, playfellow and aunt to 'The Modern Antæus,' the hero of the story of the same name published in the fall of 1901." This may or may not settle the question of the authorship of that much talked of book of which well over a quarter of a million of copies have been sold.

HENRYK IBSEN celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on March 20. Fifty-three years ago Ibsen, then an unknown pharmaceutist, went to Christiania to offer his first play "Catiline" for publication. No one would have it. At last one of his friends scraped together enough money to have the play printed; but not a copy was sold. One day, hungrier than usual, Ibsen and his friend put the "remainder" of the edition of 250 copies on a handcart and sold it to a grocer for wrapping paper. The play had however attracted the attention of Ole Bull, who made Ibsen stage manager of the Bergen Theatre. Later he became stage manager of the Christiania Theatre. In 1864 he left Norway disgusted because it would not assist Denmark in its hopeless struggle against Prussia and Austria. Never in easy circumstances before his self-imposed exile, after that he actually suffered at times for want of food. The tide turned in his favor in 1866, when he published "Brand" of which 1250 copies were sold within a month. In 1879 his reputation spread beyond the Scandinavian countries with the publication of "A Doll's House" and since then his works have never wanted for readers, admirers and detractors.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The assets of the Jamieson-Higgins Company were sold on the 10th inst., the Western News Company buying most of the books and plates. It is expected that the affairs of the concern will be wound up speedily and that the creditors will receive about 25 per cent. of the amount of their claims.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Samuel Klein, bookseller, has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

EMPORIA, KANSAS.—Joseph Samuels, for seven years with A. C. McClurg & Co., has bought an interest in Miss Plumb's bookstore.

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—W. T. Warwick, of Mankato, Minn., will shortly open a bookstore here. He will continue his Mankato business but will reside in Fond du Lac.

LEOMINSTER, MASS.—Charles Farnsworth has bought W. F. Howe's book store.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—The Kremer Book Company has made an assignment.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—H. G. Campbell denies the report that he is selling out.

NEW YORK CITY.—S. F. McLean & Co., dealers in old and new books will remove before May 1 to 430 Sixth Avenue at Twenty-sixth Street. The removal is made necessary because their old quarters in the Young Men's Christian Association, where they have been for the past nine years, will be taken down to make room for a modern building. In their new quarters McLean & Co. will have almost double the floor and shelf space they had in the old store, and have better light and ventilation.

NEW YORK CITY.—The partnership firm of Doubleday, Page & Company has been transformed into a corporation of the same name. Mr. J. L. Thompson, formerly a member of the firm, is no longer connected with the business. The officers of the new corporation are: Frank N. Doubleday, President; Walter H. Page, Vice-President; Henry W. Lanier, Secretary, and Samuel A. Everitt, Treasurer. Mr. Herbert S. Houston is also a stockholder and director of the company. The business itself undergoes no change in management.

RUSHVILLE, IND.—Mrs. B. A. Irvin has bought the book business of Miss A. L. Walker.

ST. ALBANS, VT.—The bankrupt estate of the St. Albans Book Store has declared a dividend of one hundred cents on the dollar. The settlement of the estate was through the Hon. Silas W. Flinn, as trustee, and is without doubt the first estate that has declared one hundred cents under the new law.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. RANDOLPH R. BEAM is now associated with the Scott-Thaw Company, 542 Fifth Avenue, New York.

THE OUTLOOK COMPANY will publish to-day a series of essays by Dr. Lyman Abbott on the subject of death and immortality, entitled "The Other Room."

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish at once a novel entitled "Mr. Claghorn's Daughter," by Hilary Trent, a story of the deterioration and development of character.

KIPLING'S new volume of poems, which Doubleday, Page & Co. expect to bring out in October, will contain, besides a number of new poems, all the author's important work since "The Seven Seas" volume was published, including "The Recessional" and "The Rowers."

J. M. DENT is making as complete a collection of the letters of Charles Lamb as possible for publication, and will be grateful to collectors in America who will allow him to have transcripts of their possessions made and forwarded. Communications may be addressed to J. M. Dent & Co., 29 and 30 Bedford St., Covent Garden, London.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have in press for immediate issue Santine's "Picciola," edited with notes and vocabulary by Professor O. B. Super, of Dickinson College. The text is written in pure and elegant French, yet so simple that it is suitable for pupils who have had but little practice in reading French. It is a story of perennial interest.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce that General Wallace's novel "Ben Hur" is now going to press with its one hundred and eleventh edition. The statements regarding the number of editions through which a novel has passed convey various shades of meaning, as the total amount depends on the number of books contained in each edition. But in the case of "Ben Hur" the output has included the largest reprints ever ordered by this house, not excepting "Trilby" or "Lady Rose's Daughter."

THE failure of Alexander Denham & Co., of London, is reported. The indebtedness of the concern is said to be between $70,000 and $80,000, and the assets to less than one-third of that amount. The senior Mr. Denham, it will be remembered, died last October at which time his business was considered to be solvent. The failure we understand does not affect the American branch conducted in this city by Edwin A. Denham, at 28 West Thirty-third Street, who was the American agent for the firm.

ANOTHER popular edition of the Works of Charles Dickens is announced. Chapman & Hall and Henry Froude, of the Oxford University Press, the joint publishers of the Oxford India Paper Dickens, are co-operating in the production of a new, complete, and fully illustrated edition, to be known as The Fireside Dickens. There will be twenty-two volumes in all, printed in large type, on good opaque paper, with fairly wide margins, and published at a low price. The first three volumes will be issued at once.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just published Professor James Albert Woodburn's work on "Political Parties and Party Problems in the United States," a sketch of American party history and of the development and operation of party machinery, together with a consideration of certain party problems in their relations to political morality. They have also just brought out the second part of Professor Leo Wiener's "Anthology of Russian Literature from the earliest period to the present time." This volume gives a comprehensive sketch of Russian literature in the nineteenth century.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have made arrangements with Mr. Dent, to bring out early in the fall an edition of the works of Charles Lamb in twelve volumes, with illustrations by C. E. Brock, Miss Winifred Green, Herbert Railton, and reproductions from Hogarth and a number of old prints and portraits. The edition is being prepared under the editorship of William Macdonald who will contribute a biographical and critical essay. The type to be used is of a face found by Mr. Dent in an old Edinburgh printing shop, which in other sizes was used at the time of the first publication of the "Essays."

VALUABLE books have been disappearing for some time from the store of George H. Richmond, at No. 32 West Thirty-third Street, New York. Suspicion fell upon a man on March 25 who gave his name as Thomas Williams, twenty-one years old, of No. 226 Lexington Avenue, New York, and he was arrested. In his possession were found three of the stolen books, of the value of which the man seemed ignorant. Other books had been hidden by Williams behind a picture, probably to be taken away later. The detectives say that they have been looking some time for a man who answers to a description of Williams, and that there have been many complaints of thefts from bookstores.

LEMCKE & BUECHNER, 812 Broadway, New York, have just brought out in the Monographs on Artists series a volume on "Leonardo da Vinci," by Adolf Rosenberg, translated by J. Lohse. The volume contains 128 illustrations and, like its predecessors, is handsomely printed. The author has followed closely the general scheme of the series, namely, while endeavoring to maintain a scientific thoroughness of treatment also to avoid overelaboration of detail which would make the work unintelligible if not distasteful to the general reader; hence the series has interest for the professional artist as well as value for the layman, a combination that is rarely found combined in popular treatises on art.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish early next month a volume of poems by Israel Zangwill, entitled "Blind Children," which, as the title indicates, attempt to teach the actual meaning of human existence; "The Keswick Movement," by Arthur T. Pierson, with an introduction by the Rev. Evan Hopkins the leader of the movement in England which the book describes; "The Pulpit Bible," by Dr. Joseph Parker, which gives the entire text of the Bible with suggestive and illustrative notes; "On the Trail of Moses," by the Rev. Dr. Louis Albert Banks, being thirty-one revival sermons on the incidents in the life of the Hebrew lawgiver; volume IV. of "The Jewish Encyclopædia;" also, "Washington: Its Sights and Insights," being a personally conducted trip to the National Capitol by Mrs. Harriet E. Monroe.

SCOTT-THAW COMPANY, of New York, have made arrangements with The Monadnock Press to handle the publications about to be published by the Press. These will be chiefly reprints of the prose romances and tales that were current in Elizabethan England and from which Shakespeare obtained the plots for many of his comedies and tragedies. The volumes now in hand are: "The Goodly History of the True and Constant Love Between Rhomeo and Julietta," translated by William Painter in 1569; "The History of Hamlet;" "The Shepardess Felismena, from the 'Diana' of George de Montemayor," translated by Bartholomew Yonge in 1598, from which Shakespeare obtained the plot for "The Two Gentlemen of Verona;" also, "Appolonius & Silla," translated in 1581 by Barnabe Rich, from Clithio's "Heccatomonithi," on which Shakespeare founded the plot for "Twelfth Night." The reprints will be faithful except that the orthography will be modernized, and the arrangement of the text altered by means of a revised punctuation and a new disposition into paragraphs. The editions will be limited to 115 copies printed on paper and 10 copies on real vellum.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. will publish early next month a volume under the suggestive title of "More Money for the Public Schools," in which the author, President Eliot, of Harvard, sums up in a large way the results of public education—its benefits and its shortcomings. The book is said to set forth a definitely constructive plan for producing better results; to explain in detail what most needs to be done for the improvement of our public schools; to urge greatly increased expenditure, and to show how more money could advantageously be spent. It may be expected to contain the matured conclusions of one of our most eminent educational authorities on the large practical needs of the public schools. They will shortly bring out "The Toilers of the Home," by Lillian Pettengill, a frank statement of the experiences of a college girl as a domestic servant, which is now running as a serial in Everybody's Magazine. This is to form one of their series of books which they designate as a "library of achievement," which already includes such books as Booker T. Washington's autobiography, "The Woman Who Toils," and Helen Keller's "Story of My Life."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just published two stories of more than ordinary interest. The one is entitled "The Pagan at the Shrine," a story of Southern Spain in the time of the Carlist and anti-Jesuit agitation, by Paul Gwynne, who is as familiar with village and town life in Spain as Miss Wilkins, for instance, is with New England village life. In this volume the author brings to his reader's attention all that is typical, racial and characteristic of the Spaniard. It is a true study of the native individual. The description of the conclaves at the barber shop where the barber, priest, alcalde and school-master meet to discuss public affairs, exchange racy Spanish proverbs, and squabble in the most amusing and social way is a unique characterization of the Spanish type. The other is George Cram Cook's "Roderick Taliaferro," (pronounced Tulliver,) the hero of which is an unreconstructed Confederate gentleman who after the Civil War throws in his lot with the party of the Mexican Empire, joins the army of Maximilian and after the Emperor's execution barely escapes with his life. The book is full of exciting scenes. They have also just ready "The Canterbury Pilgrims," Percy Mackaye's comedy, already fully described by us; and "Greater Russia, the Continental Empire of the Old World," by Wirt Gerrare, who describes the present conditions and the commercial and industrial development of the great Northern empire, and incidentally, also, the best openings for foreign enterprise and investment.

READY APRIL 15

The Annual
American Catalogue
CUMULATED
1900—1902

THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, Cumulated, 1900-1902, will be ready April 15, and will include in one alphabet the short-title lists of the books of 1900, 1901 and 1902, giving information of the books recorded by author, title, subject and series. This cumulation is to continue annually until a five-yearly volume of "The American Catalogue" in its new shape is reached. This form of catalogue has been generally accepted as a desirable, practical working tool for the trade, supplementing as it will do, from year to year, the last issue of the five-yearly "American Catalogue," without the need of consulting several alphabets in several volumes.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE of books in print and for sale July 1, 1876, compiled under the direction of F. LEYPOLDT, and its supplements, 1876-84, 1884-90, 1890-95, and 1895-1900, compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER, aims to present all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first part alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second part alphabetically by subjects.

The Catalogue and its supplementary volumes form the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consulter is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information by a convenient method.

The author-and-title volume of the 1876 volume is out of print. A limited number of the subject volume may be had in half leather binding at $15.

The volumes covering the periods 1876-84 and 1884-90 is also out of print.

A Word to the Bookseller

NOTE.—It isn't our business to teach you your business. But we may be able to give you some pointers on selling our books. From time to time we shall make an attempt at it, on this page.

IF there's anything about which the public is more eager, than about its own kind on parade we don't know what it is.

Every woman, from the millionaire's wife to the laundress—and pretty nearly every man—is keenly concerned in the doings of that circle which calls itself Society, with a big S. As a great, universal, ten-ringed public exhibition, it has got Barnum & Bailey's reduced to the proportions of a Punch and Judy show.

It is with Society (the big S kind) that David Graham Phillip's new novel, "Golden Fleece," deals; and it deals straight from the shoulder. It isn't a satire, it's a picture—a series of pictures—in fact, a panorama. Here is real American high life; good, bad, and unendurable. Gibson, Christy, and all the rest of the social cartoonists put together, haven't given us such a gallery of types.

The story is simple enough. An impecunious British Earl comes to America seeking, quite frankly, a rich wife. Quite as frankly, society accepts him and his mission. Of his adventures in New York, Chicago, Boston and Washington the plot is built. Perhaps because of its very simplicity it has the prime quality of fiction. It is interesting all the time.

"Golden Fleece" is a book you can sell to any woman who will read one page of it. We've kept the best thing till the last. It's a story that nobody will be sorry or ashamed to have enjoyed. There isn't a line in it that isn't as clean and honest as it is bright and clever. (Out April 6.)

16 Illustrations by Harrison Fisher. $1.50.

P. S.—The editors of the Saturday Evening Post, which published "Golden Fleece" serially, tell us that never has any other piece of fiction brought them so many letters of comment.
